ALTERGY'S FREEDOM POWER SYSTEMS TO POWER TELECOM SITES IN INDIA

FOLSOM, CA – August 2, 2012 – Alteryg is pleased to announce that its Freedom Power fuel cell systems have been selected to power telecom sites in India.

Frequent power outages have been experienced at these sites, impeding continuous communications capability. It has been determined that the best way to power these sites during outages is with Alteryg's Freedom Power fuel cells. Linde will provide fuel required for continuous operation. These systems will be called upon to provide between 4 and 20 hours of operation per day.

Under this agreement Alteryg will build and deliver 2.5kW and 5kW fuel cell power systems to power telecom sites in India. Linde AG will provide the fuel. Alteryg will transition the fabrication and assembly of its fuel cells to a strategic partner in India as country volume increases. Additionally, that same strategic partner will install commission and services products across the region.

Eric Mettler, Alteryg's President and CEO said "We are excited about growing our presence in India and the ability to make continuous communications a reality. The power demands of the telecom infrastructure have far surpassed the maturity and reliability of the power grid. Our fuel cells are the solution, providing benefits over wind turbines, solar, batteries, and generators, at lower cost."
